Perth, Australia, 25 November 2026

- Following approval from the Australian Competition and Consumer Commission (ACCC), STRABAG has completed the acquisition of KEE Surfacing Pty Ltd., which now joins the STRABAG Group in Australia.
- KEE Surfacing's approximately 70 employees, client relationships and current projects continue, providing the foundation for STRABAG's long-term ambition to grow its asphalt business nationally.

STRABAG Australia Pty. Ltd. has completed its acquisition of KEE Surfacing, following approval of the transaction by the Australian Competition and Consumer Commission (ACCC). KEE Surfacing and its team of approximately 70 employees now join the STRABAG Group in Australia.

Strengthening vertical integration

In its European core markets, STRABAG combines infrastructure construction with in-house materials production, giving greater control over cost, quality, delivery and supply chains while building resilience. KEE Surfacing brings asphalt production, asphalt laying, spray seal, profiling and base course services to STRABAG's Australian operations, extending this model into the local market for the first time.

Bringing global expertise to Australia

With the transaction complete, the focus now shifts to sharing STRABAG's global capability with the team in Australia. This includes STRABAG's specialist materials technology centres and laboratory networks, which optimise asphalt performance, enable recycling and more sustainable production methods, and support innovative applications across road, transport and complex engineering projects. Over time, this expertise will be combined with KEE Surfacing's local knowledge of Australian conditions, materials and clients.

Continuity for clients and a platform for growth

For clients, partners and suppliers, it is business as usual. The same people, crews and relationships that built KEE Surfacing's reputation will continue to deliver its current projects. That includes regional asphalt production through mobile plants servicing some of Western Australia's most remote communities. Integration will be phased to minimise disruption, with safety and quality as priorities throughout the transition. In the longer term, KEE Surfacing will act as the platform for developing and expanding STRABAG's asphalt business in Australia.

> Completing this acquisition is a significant step in building STRABAG's long-term future in Australia. KEE Surfacing brings a team with a strong reputation for quality, safety and productivity, and a deep understanding of the Western Australian market. Combined with STRABAG's global strength in materials, asphalt technology and research, it gives us a foundation to grow, both in Western Australia and nationally over time. Our priority now is continuity for our clients and our people, and we are proud to officially welcome the KEE Surfacing team to STRABAG.
